DALLAS ARBORETUM AND BOTANICAL GARDEN

The 12 Days of Christmas Gazebos: A Final Holiday Farewell

A beloved Dallas holiday tradition is preparing for its final encore. The 12 Days of Christmas Gazebos at the Dallas Arboretum and Botanical Garden will make its last appearance following the 2026 holiday season, giving visitors one final opportunity to experience this spectacular Christmas tradition.

For more than a decade, the 12 Days of Christmas Gazebos have delighted visitors with 12 magnificent Victorian-style displays, each inspired by a verse from the classic Christmas carol. Enclosed in glass and filled with elaborate costumes, whimsical characters, animals, music and moving elements, the gazebos create a magical stroll through the gardens.

The exhibit was originally created after Phyllis and Tom McCasland envisioned a one-of-a-kind Christmas experience for Dallas. With the creative talents of Dallas Opera production designer Tommy Bourgeois and countless hours of craftsmanship, the idea became one of the Arboretum's signature holiday attractions.

Make 2026 the year to see it one more time! It's a chance to celebrate the memories, marvel at the incredible artistry and say a festive farewell to a true Dallas holiday icon. For more details visit <https://www.dallasarboretum.org/events-activities/holiday-at-the-arboretum>
